

Yokohama Tyres BriSCA F2 Statement 22nd January 2015 (E&OE)

Yokohama Tyre Markings

- Yokohama HPT Ltd have informed BriSCA F2 that the A021R tyre, used as a control tyre on BriSCA F2 Stock Cars, will no longer carry the “E” rating that designates the tyre as road legal.
 - The tyre design, which remains UNCHANGED, no longer meets the latest European regulations covering road noise, and therefore the tyre is no longer permitted for road use, or to carry the “E” designation mark.
 - Newly produced tyres will now be marked for competition use only, and the “E” marking will be removed.
 - Yokohama HPT Ltd assures BriSCA F2 that there is NO CHANGE to the tyre design, specification, compound, or any other element. The change in markings, to state competition use only, is simply to comply with the latest European legislation.
 - BriSCA F2 stress that there is NO DIFFERENCE between tyres produced up to now, and those to be produced in the future with the changed markings, and drivers should therefore continue to purchase, use and manage their tyres as they do currently.
-